3D GIS for Urban Planning Training Course

Introduction

3D GIS for Urban Planning Training Course provides comprehensive practical knowledge in three-dimensional geographic information systems, spatial analysis, urban visualization, and digital city modelling for modern urban development. The course explores advanced 3D GIS technologies, geospatial data integration, terrain modelling, building information, urban digital twins, spatial databases, remote sensing, LiDAR, photogrammetry, and interactive 3D visualization. Participants will learn how to transform complex spatial datasets into actionable intelligence for urban planning, infrastructure development, land-use management, environmental assessment, and sustainable city development.

The training emphasizes practical applications of 3D GIS for smart cities, urban growth management, development control, transportation planning, infrastructure coordination, environmental impact assessment, disaster risk management, and climate-resilient urban development. Through global case studies and applied exercises, participants will develop the skills to create, analyze, visualize, and communicate three-dimensional urban environments that support evidence-based planning decisions, stakeholder engagement, and sustainable urban transformation.
