Green Corridors and Ecological Networks Training Course

Introduction

Green Corridors and Ecological Networks are essential tools for sustainable spatial planning, biodiversity conservation, climate resilience, and ecosystem restoration. Green Corridors and Ecological Networks Training Course equips participants with advanced knowledge and practical skills in ecological connectivity, habitat conservation, landscape planning, biodiversity management, nature-based solutions, climate adaptation, and sustainable infrastructure development. It explores how green corridors can reconnect fragmented habitats, support wildlife movement, strengthen ecosystem services, and integrate environmental priorities into urban and regional development.

The course also examines innovative approaches to ecological network design, GIS-based connectivity mapping, restoration planning, environmental impact assessment, and stakeholder engagement. Participants will explore international best practices and global case studies while learning how governments, conservation organizations, private-sector actors, communities, and Public-Private Partnerships can finance and implement resilient green infrastructure. The training supports practical decision-making for creating connected, climate-smart, biodiversity-positive, and economically sustainable landscapes.

Course Objectives

By the end of the course, participants will be able to:

- Apply advanced principles of green corridor and ecological network planning.
- Assess habitat fragmentation, connectivity, and biodiversity risks.
- Develop GIS-based ecological connectivity and landscape maps.
- Integrate biodiversity conservation into spatial and urban planning.
- Design climate-resilient green infrastructure and nature-based solutions.
- Apply ecological restoration and habitat rehabilitation techniques.
