International Labour Standards and Labour Rights Compliance Training Course

Introduction

International Labour Standards and Labour Rights Compliance Training Course is designed to equip participants with the knowledge, practical skills and strategic tools required to interpret, implement and monitor international labour standards across diverse employment environments. The course explores the international legal framework governing labour rights, with particular emphasis on the conventions and recommendations of the International Labour Organization (ILO), fundamental principles and rights at work, decent work, employment protection, occupational safety and health, freedom of association, collective bargaining, non-discrimination and the elimination of forced labour and child labour. Participants will examine how international labour conventions, national labour legislation, employment policies and corporate governance frameworks interact to establish effective labour rights protection systems. The programme also addresses emerging priorities such as ESG compliance, human rights due diligence, responsible business conduct, ethical supply chains, modern slavery prevention and sustainable workforce management.

Through practical case studies, interactive discussions and compliance simulations, participants will develop the capacity to assess labour practices, identify regulatory gaps, conduct workplace audits and implement effective labour rights compliance programmes. The training emphasizes the practical application of international labour standards in multinational corporations, government institutions, development organizations, manufacturing industries, construction projects and global supply chains. Participants will explore employer obligations, workers' rights, labour inspection mechanisms, dispute resolution procedures, corporate accountability and international reporting requirements. Special attention is given to contemporary labour challenges, including digital platform work, artificial intelligence in employment, migrant worker protection, informal employment, workplace harassment, wage inequality and changing employment relationships. By the end of the programme, participants will be better equipped to develop risk-based labour compliance strategies, strengthen institutional accountability, prevent labour rights violations, promote decent work and align organizational practices with international human rights and labour governance standards.

Course Duration

10 days
