Course Curriculum & Modules

Procurement Ethics, Conflict of Interest and Supplier Accountability Training Course

Introduction

Procurement professionals face growing challenges involving conflicts of interest, bribery, corruption, supplier collusion, bid manipulation, fraud, favoritism and unethical business practices. These challenges can undermine organizational credibility, increase procurement costs, compromise service delivery and expose institutions to serious legal and reputational risks. Procurement Ethics, Conflict of Interest and Supplier Accountability Training Course is designed to strengthen ethical decision-making, promote responsible procurement practices and equip participants with practical knowledge of procurement laws, anti-corruption frameworks, ethical sourcing principles and supplier management standards. It explores modern procurement governance, ethical leadership, integrity due diligence, transparency in tendering, whistleblowing mechanisms and risk-based supplier oversight.

Through interactive case studies, practical exercises, procurement simulations and real-world scenarios, participants will learn how to establish effective internal controls, strengthen supplier relationships, investigate unethical conduct and implement accountability mechanisms. The training also examines emerging issues such as digital procurement integrity, artificial intelligence in procurement oversight, sustainable sourcing, beneficial ownership transparency and responsible supply chain management. By the end of the programme, participants will be better equipped to build ethical procurement cultures, protect organizational interests and ensure that procurement decisions deliver value for money while complying with applicable regulatory and institutional requirements.

Course Duration

5 Days

Course Objectives

- Understand the principles of procurement ethics, integrity, transparency and accountability in modern procurement systems.
- Identify, assess and manage actual, potential and perceived conflicts of interest in procurement activities.
- Apply relevant procurement laws, regulations, policies and international compliance standards.
- Strengthen anti-bribery, anti-corruption and fraud prevention mechanisms across procurement operations.
- Develop effective supplier accountability frameworks and ethical supplier management strategies.
- Recognize procurement fraud, bid rigging, collusion, favoritism and unethical tender evaluation practices.
- Conduct supplier integrity assessments, due diligence and beneficial ownership verification.
- Implement transparent tendering, competitive bidding and objective supplier selection procedures.
- Strengthen contract management, supplier performance monitoring and procurement audit processes.
- Apply whistleblowing, reporting and investigation procedures to suspected procurement misconduct.
- Integrate Environmental, Social and Governance (ESG) principles into ethical sourcing and supplier selection.
- Leverage digital procurement technologies and data analytics to detect irregularities and strengthen oversight.
- Establish sustainable procurement governance frameworks that promote organizational trust and value for money.

- Internal auditors, external auditors and compliance officers.
- Risk management professionals and corporate governance specialists.
- Legal advisors, contract managers and regulatory affairs professionals.
- Ethics officers, anti-corruption investigators and integrity assurance professionals.
- Suppliers, contractors, vendor relationship managers and business development professionals.

Course Modules

Module 1: Foundations of Procurement Ethics and Professional Integrity

- Principles of ethical procurement and professional conduct.
- Transparency, fairness, competition and accountability in procurement.
- Ethical leadership and integrity-driven procurement culture.
- Professional codes of conduct and procurement responsibilities.
- International procurement ethics standards and governance frameworks.
- Case Study: Examining a procurement department where favoritism in supplier selection undermined organizational trust and assessing corrective measures to restore ethical procurement practices.

Module 2: Conflict of Interest Identification, Prevention and Management

- Understanding actual, potential and perceived conflicts of interest.
- Personal, financial, professional and family-related conflicts.
- Conflict-of-interest disclosure and declaration procedures.
- Managing gifts, hospitality, sponsorships and inappropriate influence.
- Developing conflict-of-interest registers and mitigation strategies.
- Case Study: A procurement officer participates in evaluating bids submitted by a company owned by a close relative.

Module 3: Anti-Bribery, Anti-Corruption and Procurement Fraud Prevention

- Understanding bribery, kickbacks, facilitation payments and corruption.
- Identifying bid manipulation, collusion and fraudulent tender practices.
- Anti-bribery policies and corporate compliance programmes.
- Procurement fraud indicators and red-flag identification.
- Strengthening internal controls and corruption risk assessments.
- Case Study: Investigating allegations that suppliers offered financial incentives to procurement officials in exchange for preferential treatment during contract awards.

Module 4: Supplier Due Diligence, Integrity Screening and Ethical Sourcing

- Supplier registration, qualification and integrity verification.
- Beneficial ownership identification and transparency.
- Screening suppliers for sanctions, fraud and corruption risks.
- Evaluating supplier reputation, financial integrity and compliance history.
- Integrating ESG, human rights and sustainability considerations into supplier selection.
- Case Study: An organization discovers that a preferred supplier has undisclosed links to a sanctioned entity.

Module 5: Transparent Tendering, Evaluation and Contract Award
