Age-Friendly Urban Planning Training Course

Introduction

Age-Friendly Urban Planning Training Course equips urban planners, policymakers, developers, architects, transport professionals, and community leaders with advanced knowledge and practical tools for creating inclusive, accessible, safe, resilient, and sustainable cities for ageing populations. The course focuses on age-friendly urban design, universal accessibility, inclusive mobility, housing, healthcare access, public spaces, digital inclusion, climate resilience, and intergenerational planning. Participants explore evidence-based approaches aligned with global healthy ageing frameworks, sustainable urban development, and inclusive city planning.

The course also examines how municipalities can integrate demographic ageing into urban development strategies, infrastructure investment, land-use planning, transport systems, housing policies, and community services. Emphasis is placed on stakeholder engagement, participatory planning, smart-city technologies, social inclusion, climate adaptation, financing mechanisms, and Public-Private Partnerships. Global case studies provide practical insights into successful age-friendly initiatives and help participants develop implementable strategies for more equitable and resilient urban environments.

Course Objectives

- Apply age-friendly urban planning principles and global best practices.
- Integrate demographic ageing into urban development strategies.
- Design accessible, safe, and inclusive public spaces.
