AI-Powered City Planning Training Course

Introduction

AI-Powered City Planning Training Course provides a practical and strategic understanding of how artificial intelligence, machine learning, geospatial analytics, digital twins, predictive modelling, and smart-city technologies are transforming modern urban planning. The course equips professionals with advanced capabilities in AI-driven urban analytics, land-use planning, transport modelling, infrastructure optimization, climate-resilient development, population forecasting, and evidence-based decision-making. Participants explore how artificial intelligence can integrate satellite imagery, geographic information systems, Internet of Things data, mobility data, demographic information, and environmental datasets to support efficient, inclusive, sustainable, and data-driven city development.

The course also examines the governance, ethical, financial, and implementation dimensions of AI-powered urban transformation. Participants learn how to develop AI-enabled planning frameworks, assess urban growth scenarios, optimize public services, strengthen climate resilience, and support smart infrastructure investment. Particular attention is given to digital twins, automated spatial analysis, predictive urban modelling, responsible artificial intelligence, and technology-enabled Public-Private Partnerships for sustainable city development. Global case studies demonstrate how leading cities are applying AI to improve mobility, housing, infrastructure, environmental management, public safety, and urban service delivery.
