Course Curriculum & Modules

Anti-Trafficking Legislation and Protection of Vulnerable Persons Training Course

Introduction

Human trafficking remains one of the most serious forms of organized crime and human rights violations worldwide, involving the exploitation of individuals through forced labour, sexual exploitation, child trafficking, forced marriage, domestic servitude, debt bondage, and other forms of modern slavery. Anti-Trafficking Legislation and Protection of Vulnerable Persons Training Course is designed to equip participants with comprehensive knowledge and practical skills in human trafficking prevention, anti-trafficking legislation, victim identification, human rights protection, criminal justice responses, and survivor-centred interventions. The course explores international legal frameworks, national anti-trafficking policies, law enforcement mechanisms, prosecution strategies, cross-border cooperation, and institutional responsibilities in combating human trafficking. Participants will examine emerging trafficking trends, online exploitation, human trafficking networks, child protection concerns, migration-related vulnerabilities, and the importance of strengthening legal and institutional frameworks to prevent exploitation and promote accountability.

The training also focuses on victim-centred protection, trauma-informed care, safeguarding vulnerable populations, survivor rehabilitation, gender-responsive interventions, and access to justice. Participants will develop practical competencies in identifying trafficking indicators, conducting safe victim interviews, conducting vulnerability assessments, coordinating referrals, and implementing effective protection and reintegration programmes. Through practical exercises, legal case studies, scenario-based learning, and institutional response simulations, the course emphasizes collaboration among government agencies, law enforcement officers, social workers, healthcare professionals, civil society organizations, immigration authorities, and international partners. Particular attention is given to protecting children, women, refugees, migrants, persons with disabilities, and other at-risk populations. By the end of the programme, participants will be better positioned to strengthen anti-trafficking enforcement, improve victim support systems, uphold fundamental human rights, and contribute to sustainable strategies for eliminating human trafficking and protecting vulnerable persons.

Course Duration

5 days

Course Objectives

By the end of this course, participants will be able to:

- Understand international and national anti-human trafficking legislation, conventions, protocols, and regulatory frameworks.
- Identify different forms of human trafficking, including forced labour, sexual exploitation, child trafficking, and modern slavery.
- Interpret key provisions of the UN Palermo Protocol and relevant national anti-trafficking laws.
- Strengthen knowledge of human trafficking investigation, criminal prosecution, and law enforcement procedures.
- Apply effective victim identification, screening, and vulnerability assessment techniques.
- Develop skills in trauma-informed interviewing and survivor-centred case management.
- Understand human rights-based approaches to protecting vulnerable populations and trafficking survivors.
- Strengthen child safeguarding, child protection, and gender-responsive intervention strategies.
- Identify trafficking risks associated with irregular migration, displacement, refugee movements, and labour exploitation.
- Develop effective victim referral pathways, protection mechanisms, and multi-agency coordination frameworks.
- Understand survivor rehabilitation, psychosocial support, reintegration, and long-term recovery strategies.
- Apply emerging technologies and digital intelligence in identifying and preventing online human trafficking and exploitation.
- Design effective anti-trafficking prevention strategies, institutional compliance frameworks, and sustainable victim protection programmes.
