Battery Storage Procurement and Contracts Training Course

Introduction

The rapid acceleration of energy transition, grid modernization, and renewable energy integration has made Battery Energy Storage Systems (BESS) a cornerstone of resilient and flexible power systems. Organizations across utilities, IPPs, developers, and large energy users are increasingly investing in utility-scale storage, hybrid renewable projects, and distributed energy resources (DERs) to optimize performance, reduce costs, and enhance energy security. However, the complexity of battery procurement, EPC contracting, performance guarantees, and lifecycle risk management demands specialized knowledge to ensure successful project delivery and long-term value creation.

Battery Storage Procurement and Contracts Training Course equips professionals with practical, real-world expertise in battery storage procurement strategies, contract structuring, and risk allocation frameworks aligned with global best practices. Participants will gain deep insights into bankability, supplier evaluation, commercial negotiations, and contractual safeguards while exploring cutting-edge trends such as AI-driven forecasting, energy trading optimization, and grid services monetization. Through interactive modules and case studies, the course bridges the gap between technical understanding and commercial execution.
