City-Region Planning and Governance Training Course

Introduction

City-region planning and governance is a strategic approach to managing interconnected urban areas, metropolitan territories, surrounding municipalities, rural-urban linkages, infrastructure systems, economies, and ecosystems as integrated spatial and economic systems. City-Region Planning and Governance Training Course develops advanced competencies in metropolitan planning, territorial governance, spatial development, urban-rural integration, infrastructure coordination, economic development, climate resilience, sustainable mobility, land-use management, and evidence-based decision-making. Participants will examine how city-regions can strengthen competitiveness, improve public service delivery, manage rapid urbanization, and achieve inclusive and sustainable development through coordinated governance frameworks.

The course integrates contemporary approaches to smart city-region development, regional economic planning, sustainable urbanization, climate-smart spatial planning, digital governance, public-private partnerships (PPP), stakeholder engagement, metropolitan institutional reform, and strategic infrastructure investment. Through international case studies and practical exercises, participants will explore governance models and planning instruments used across Africa, Europe, Asia, North America, and other regions, enabling them to develop practical strategies for coordinated city-region development, resilient infrastructure, inclusive growth, environmental sustainability, and effective multi-level governance.

Course Objectives

By the end of the course, participants will be able to:

- Apply advanced city-region planning and metropolitan governance principles.
- Develop integrated spatial and territorial development strategies.
- Analyze urban-rural linkages and regional growth dynamics.
- Apply data-driven and GIS-enabled planning techniques.
- Strengthen multi-level governance and institutional coordination.
- Integrate climate resilience and sustainable development into regional plans.
- Design inclusive metropolitan infrastructure and mobility strategies.
- Apply smart city and digital governance solutions.
- Evaluate land-use, housing, and economic development policies.
- Strengthen stakeholder engagement and participatory planning.
- Apply public-private partnerships (PPP) approaches to regional infrastructure.
- Develop strategic monitoring, evaluation, and performance frameworks.
- Formulate sustainable, inclusive, and investment-ready city-region development plans.
