Contribution Analysis for Causal Inference in M&E Training Course

Introduction

Contribution Analysis for Causal Inference in M&E Training Course is designed to strengthen causal inference and enhance evidence-based decision-making. This training course equips M&E professionals with advanced tools and methodologies to systematically assess program contributions to observed outcomes, particularly in complex contexts where direct attribution is challenging. Participants will learn how to integrate qualitative and quantitative data, develop credible contribution stories, and apply structured frameworks to ensure interventions achieve their intended impact. By emphasizing practical application, this course empowers practitioners to generate actionable insights that improve program design, accountability, and policy influence.

This course leverages cutting-edge trends in causal inference, theory-based evaluation, and data triangulation to build participants' competencies in evidence synthesis and decision-support. Through real-world case studies, interactive exercises, and group discussions, learners will master how to identify key assumptions, test contribution claims, and communicate findings effectively to stakeholders. Emphasis on rigorous methodological approaches ensures participants can navigate complex evaluation environments, increase program credibility, and drive adaptive learning. By the end of the course, learners will confidently apply Contribution Analysis techniques to strengthen evidence-based program planning, management, and advocacy.

Course Duration

5 days
