Cross-Border Financial Regulation and International Banking Compliance Training Course

Introduction

Cross-Border Financial Regulation and International Banking Compliance Training Course is designed to equip banking professionals, financial regulators, compliance officers, legal practitioners and financial services executives with advanced knowledge and practical skills in managing the increasingly complex regulatory environment governing international banking and cross-border financial transactions. As global financial markets become more interconnected, financial institutions face growing regulatory expectations relating to international banking supervision, cross-border financial regulation, Basel III and Basel IV frameworks, anti-money laundering (AML), counter-terrorist financing (CTF), Know Your Customer (KYC), sanctions compliance, financial crime prevention and regulatory reporting. This course explores the legal, institutional and operational frameworks governing international banking activities, with particular emphasis on regulatory harmonisation, prudential supervision, capital adequacy, liquidity risk management, correspondent banking, international payment systems and the evolving role of global regulatory institutions. Participants will examine how international standards developed by organisations such as the Basel Committee on Banking Supervision (BCBS), Financial Action Task Force (FATF), Financial Stability Board (FSB) and International Monetary Fund (IMF) influence domestic banking legislation, regulatory enforcement and financial sector governance.

The programme also addresses emerging challenges associated with digital banking regulation, fintech compliance, cross-border data protection, open banking, cryptocurrency regulation, operational resilience, cybersecurity governance and international financial crime investigations. Participants will develop the ability to interpret complex regulatory requirements, establish effective compliance management systems, conduct cross-border regulatory risk assessments and strengthen institutional governance across multiple jurisdictions. Through practical case studies, regulatory simulations, comparative legal analysis and industry-focused discussions, the course explores how financial institutions can navigate conflicting regulatory obligations, manage supervisory relationships and respond effectively to international enforcement actions. Special attention is given to correspondent banking relationships, beneficial ownership transparency, politically exposed persons (PEPs), suspicious transaction reporting, international sanctions regimes and emerging financial technology risks. By the end of the training, participants will be better equipped to design robust international banking compliance frameworks, promote regulatory accountability, minimise legal and financial exposure, and support sustainable growth in an increasingly interconnected global financial system.

Course Duration

10 days

Course Objectives

By the end of this training course, participants will be able to:

- Understand the international financial regulatory architecture and the roles of major global banking supervisory institutions.
