Course Curriculum & Modules

Customer Effort Score (CES): Measurement and Improvement Training Course

Introduction

In today’s hyper-competitive business landscape, customer experience has become a pivotal differentiator. The Customer Effort Score (CES) is a powerful metric that measures the ease with which customers interact with your brand, highlighting friction points that affect loyalty and retention. By effectively analyzing CES, organizations can identify pain points, streamline processes, and foster customer-centric strategies that drive higher satisfaction, repeat engagement, and business growth. Customer Effort Score (CES): Measurement and Improvement Training Course equips professionals with actionable insights to measure, interpret, and improve CES, enabling companies to transform customer interactions into seamless, loyalty-building experiences.

The course combines data-driven analytics, practical case studies, and hands-on exercises to empower participants with the skills needed to reduce customer effort and maximize customer loyalty and advocacy. Participants will learn how to implement CES measurement frameworks, leverage technology tools, and design process improvements that enhance operational efficiency and customer delight. With a focus on real-world applications, this course ensures learners are prepared to implement actionable strategies that directly impact customer retention, satisfaction, and lifetime value.
