Course Curriculum & Modules

Evidence-Based Advocacy for Trade Unions Training Course

Introduction

Evidence-Based Advocacy for Trade Unions Training Course equips labor representatives with the analytical tools to leverage big data, socio-economic metrics, and legal precedents to advocate for decent work. By grounding demands in empirical evidence, unions can effectively challenge algorithmic bias and navigate the complexities of the gig economy, ensuring that the "just transition" remains centered on worker protections rather than mere corporate efficiency.

Beyond traditional collective bargaining, this training focuses on institutional experimentation and the use of digital cooperative platforms as tools for worker emancipation. Participants will learn to synthesize quantitative labor market data with qualitative "worker voice" narratives to build compelling cases for policy reform. This holistic approach ensures that union strategies are not only resilient against labour alienation but are also capable of shaping the future of work through economic democracy and solidaristic prosperity.

Course Duration

5 Days

Course Objectives

- Interpret complex labor market indicators and productivity metrics to support wage demands.
- Develop evidence-based strategies for Just Transition frameworks in energy and manufacturing sectors
- Identify and challenge algorithmic scheduling and bias in digital platform work
- Utilize tripartite study methodologies to engage effectively with governments and employers
- Implement data-driven interventions to close the gender pay gap and enhance female leadership
- Apply due diligence evidence to protect rights in apparel and electronic supply chains
- Use modern forensic auditing techniques to identify "hidden" forced labor and modern slavery
- Build virtual communities of practice for real-time information sharing across borders
- Use the Carnegie framework to measure non-monetary aspects of work like autonomy and well-being
- Craft legal and social arguments for the re-classification of independent contractors into "employee" status
- Translate raw data into "human-centric" narratives for public-facing advocacy campaigns.
- Design and test new models of workplace democracy and profit-sharing
- Use wearable technology data and activity trackers to provide empirical evidence for worker fatigue and safety
