Course Curriculum & Modules

Gender in Higher Education Training Course

Introduction

Gender in Higher Education Training Course explores the systemic challenges, gender biases, and policy gaps affecting students, faculty, and administrative leadership. Participants will gain advanced insights into gender-responsive pedagogy, institutional policy frameworks, and inclusive academic practices, empowering them to design strategies that foster equitable participation and career advancement for all genders. The course emphasizes intersectionality, social justice, and leadership, preparing stakeholders to address the unique barriers faced by underrepresented groups in academia.

In addition, the course integrates practical tools, research-driven frameworks, and real-world case studies to enable participants to critically assess institutional culture, curriculum design, and governance structures. By leveraging global best practices and data-driven approaches, learners will enhance their capacity to implement sustainable gender equity initiatives, monitor progress through key metrics, and advocate for inclusive policies. This comprehensive program combines theory, applied research, and experiential learning to ensure participants are equipped to champion systemic change in higher education institutions.
