Course Curriculum & Modules

Geotechnical Instrumentation Training Course

Introduction

With the rapid expansion of mega infrastructure projects such as tunnels, dams, highways, mining operations, and high-rise foundations, the demand for real-time geotechnical monitoring, automated data acquisition systems, and predictive ground deformation analysis has significantly increased. Geotechnical Instrumentation Training Course integrates theoretical geotechnical principles with practical field applications using modern instrumentation technologies such as piezometers, inclinometers, extensometers, load cells, and settlement markers.

The training emphasizes data-driven decision-making, IoT-based geotechnical monitoring systems, digital twin modeling, and risk mitigation strategies for civil engineering projects. Participants will gain hands-on experience in installation, calibration, data interpretation, and reporting of geotechnical instruments aligned with international standards and best practices. The course also focuses on enhancing competencies in construction safety, geohazard monitoring, and foundation performance evaluation, enabling professionals to minimize structural failures and optimize engineering design reliability across complex geological environments.
