Informal Settlement Infrastructure Planning Training Course

Introduction

Informal Settlement Infrastructure Planning is a strategic urban development discipline focused on improving infrastructure, basic services, spatial organization, resilience, and living conditions within rapidly growing informal settlements. Informal Settlement Infrastructure Planning Training Course provides practical and policy-oriented knowledge in settlement upgrading, infrastructure assessment, participatory planning, land-use management, water and sanitation systems, transport connectivity, drainage, energy access, climate resilience, and inclusive urban development. Participants will explore modern approaches to integrating informal settlements into wider urban planning frameworks while addressing affordability, tenure security, environmental risks, public health, and social inclusion.

The course also examines infrastructure investment planning, community engagement, data-driven settlement mapping, urban governance, financing mechanisms, and sustainable upgrading strategies. Through international case studies and practical planning approaches, participants will learn how governments, development agencies, municipalities, private-sector stakeholders, and communities can coordinate infrastructure improvements without unnecessarily displacing vulnerable populations. The course incorporates sustainable development, climate-smart infrastructure, resilient cities, inclusive urbanization, and global best practices to strengthen participants' capacity to develop implementable infrastructure planning and settlement upgrading programs.
