Land Tenure in Informal Settlements Training Course

Introduction

Land tenure in informal settlements is a critical urban development, housing, governance, and social equity issue affecting secure access to land, property rights, livelihoods, infrastructure, and sustainable community development. Land Tenure in Informal Settlements Training Course provides practical and strategic knowledge on informal land occupation, tenure security, customary and statutory land systems, land regularization, settlement upgrading, property documentation, land-use planning, displacement risks, and inclusive urban governance. Participants will examine contemporary approaches for addressing complex tenure arrangements while supporting affordable housing, resilient communities, sustainable urban development, and responsible land administration.

The course integrates international best practices in land governance, participatory planning, community mapping, land registration, conflict resolution, climate resilience, and settlement upgrading. It also explores the role of governments, municipalities, communities, development partners, civil society organizations, private-sector stakeholders, and Public-Private Partnerships in improving tenure security without creating exclusion or involuntary displacement. Global case studies will enable participants to assess practical approaches applicable to rapidly urbanizing cities and informal settlements.

Course Objectives

- Understand land tenure systems and informal settlement dynamics.
- Analyze tenure insecurity, property rights, and land-access challenges.
- Apply land regularization and tenure-upgrading approaches.
- Strengthen participatory land-use planning and community engagement.
- Examine customary, statutory, and hybrid tenure arrangements.
- Develop strategies for inclusive land registration and documentation.
- Apply GIS, participatory mapping, and spatial-data techniques.
- Identify land-related conflicts and apply dispute-resolution mechanisms.
- Assess displacement, eviction, and resettlement risks.
- Integrate climate resilience into informal settlement land management.
- Evaluate gender-responsive and socially inclusive tenure policies.
- Develop sustainable settlement upgrading and land governance strategies.
- Apply international best practices to practical land tenure challenges.

Organizational Benefits

- Improved land governance and tenure-security practices.
- Better management of informal settlement land records.
- Stronger community participation in land-use decisions.
- Reduced land-related disputes and administrative conflicts.
