Non-Motorized Transport Planning Training Course

Introduction

Non-Motorized Transport Planning Training Course provides comprehensive knowledge and practical skills for designing, planning, implementing, and managing safe, inclusive, accessible, and sustainable walking and cycling systems. The course explores pedestrian planning, cycling infrastructure, active mobility, complete streets, road safety, universal accessibility, public transport integration, traffic calming, urban mobility, transport demand management, and climate-resilient transport planning. Participants will learn how to develop evidence-based non-motorized transport strategies that improve mobility, reduce congestion, enhance road safety, support public health, and contribute to low-carbon urban development.

The course also examines contemporary approaches to active transport planning, including mobility data analysis, network connectivity, pedestrian-oriented urban design, cycling master planning, smart mobility technologies, and sustainable infrastructure financing. Through practical exercises and international case studies, participants will evaluate non-motorized transport networks and develop implementable interventions aligned with sustainable urban development objectives. The training is particularly relevant to cities seeking equitable mobility solutions, improved public spaces, reduced transport emissions, and stronger integration between walking, cycling, and public transportation.

Course Objectives

By the end of this course, participants will be able to:

- Understand advanced principles of non-motorized transport planning and active mobility.
- Apply sustainable urban mobility planning approaches to walking and cycling networks.
- Develop safe, connected, and accessible pedestrian infrastructure.
- Design strategic cycling networks using current planning standards and best practices.
- Apply road safety and Vision Zero principles to non-motorized transport systems.
- Integrate universal accessibility into pedestrian and cycling infrastructure.
- Use mobility data and GIS-based analysis for network planning and prioritization.
