QGIS for Infrastructure Training Course

Introduction

QGIS for Infrastructure Training Course is designed to develop advanced Geospatial Information System (GIS) skills for professionals involved in infrastructure planning, engineering, construction, transportation, utilities, urban development, and asset management. This course provides hands-on expertise in open-source GIS technology, spatial data analytics, remote sensing integration, digital mapping, infrastructure lifecycle management, and geospatial decision-making using QGIS. Participants will learn how to transform complex infrastructure datasets into actionable insights through spatial analysis, network modelling, geodatabase development, field data collection, and automated GIS workflows.

The program focuses on practical applications of QGIS in modern infrastructure projects by integrating smart city solutions, sustainable development planning, BIM-GIS integration, artificial intelligence (AI) in geospatial workflows, and location intelligence. Through real-world projects and case studies, learners will gain the ability to create professional maps, manage infrastructure assets, analyze environmental impacts, optimize transportation networks, and support evidence-based engineering decisions. This training empowers organizations to improve project efficiency, operational performance, infrastructure resilience, and digital transformation outcomes.
