Course Curriculum & Modules

Quantitative Policy Analysis Training Course

Introduction

Quantitative Policy Analysis is an advanced professional discipline that applies econometrics, statistics, data analytics, economic modelling, and evidence-based research to evaluate public policies and support effective decision-making. Quantitative Policy Analysis Training Course develops practical expertise in quantitative policy evaluation, cost-benefit analysis, impact assessment, forecasting, statistical modelling, scenario analysis, and policy simulation. Participants will learn how to transform complex economic and social datasets into actionable policy intelligence using modern analytical frameworks, quantitative methods, and data-driven decision-making techniques. The course emphasizes evidence-based policymaking, causal inference, policy modelling, risk analysis, and measurable outcomes for public-sector and organizational policy development.

The course provides hands-on exposure to policy research methodologies, regression analysis, time-series analysis, microsimulation, sensitivity analysis, forecasting models, and monitoring and evaluation frameworks. Participants will examine international policy applications involving taxation, healthcare, education, employment, climate change, infrastructure, trade, and social protection. Global case studies from the World Bank, International Monetary Fund, OECD, European Union, United Kingdom, United States, and African economies will demonstrate how quantitative evidence can inform policy design, implementation, resource allocation, and impact measurement. By the end of the course, participants will be able to produce credible quantitative policy assessments and communicate analytical findings to policymakers and senior decision-makers.
