Shellfish Production Systems Training Course

Introduction

Shellfish aquaculture is a rapidly evolving sector in sustainable seafood production, providing critical solutions for food security, coastal ecosystem restoration, and economic growth. Shellfish Production Systems Training Course is designed to equip participants with advanced knowledge in modern shellfish farming techniques, hatchery management, and integrated coastal resource utilization. Leveraging cutting-edge practices and real-world case studies, the program ensures participants can optimize shellfish growth, enhance water quality management, and implement eco-friendly production systems.

The course emphasizes practical, results-driven learning through hands-on exercises, interactive modules, and case-based simulations. Participants will gain skills in sustainable shellfish cultivation, disease management, feed optimization, and market-oriented production planning. By the end of the training, learners will be prepared to lead shellfish production projects, improve yield efficiency, and contribute to the resilience of coastal aquaculture systems.
