Training Course on Wildlife Hazard Management at Airports

Introduction

Wildlife strikes pose a significant and persistent threat to aviation safety globally, leading to substantial economic losses, aircraft damage, and, in severe cases, human casualties. Training Course on Wildlife Hazard Management at Airports is meticulously designed to equip airport personnel with the essential knowledge and practical skills required to develop, implement, and maintain robust Wildlife Hazard Management Plans (WHMPs). Through a blend of industry best practices, regulatory compliance (ICAO), and cutting-edge technologies, participants will learn how to proactively mitigate risks, protect aircraft, and ensure the continuous, safe operation of airport environments.

Effective wildlife hazard mitigation demands a comprehensive and proactive approach, integrating ecological understanding with operational realities. This program delves into the intricacies of wildlife behavior, habitat management, deterrent strategies, and advanced detection systems to empower airport operators and related stakeholders. By fostering a culture of proactive risk assessment and data-driven decision-making, this course aims to significantly reduce the frequency and severity of wildlife-aircraft interactions, safeguarding both airside operations and the broader ecosystem.
