Course Curriculum & Modules

Urban Development Monitoring, Evaluation and Impact Assessment Training Course

Introduction

Urban Development Monitoring, Evaluation and Impact Assessment Training Course provides a practical framework for measuring the performance, outcomes, sustainability, and broader impacts of urban development programs, projects, policies, and infrastructure investments. The course integrates urban monitoring and evaluation, results-based management, impact assessment, urban indicators, spatial data analysis, development performance measurement, stakeholder engagement, and evidence-based urban planning. Participants will learn how to establish logical frameworks, theories of change, key performance indicators, baseline and endline assessments, data collection systems, and impact measurement approaches that support effective urban development decision-making.

The training emphasizes contemporary approaches to sustainable urban development, inclusive cities, climate-resilient urban planning, smart cities, spatial monitoring, social and economic impact assessment, environmental performance, and data-driven governance. Through practical exercises and global case studies, participants will develop the capacity to assess whether urban programs achieve intended results, identify implementation gaps, measure socioeconomic and environmental impacts, and translate monitoring and evaluation findings into actionable recommendations for policymakers, planners, municipalities, development agencies, and urban infrastructure stakeholders.
