Urban Noise Management Training Course

Introduction

Urban Noise Management Training Course provides comprehensive knowledge and practical skills for identifying, assessing, controlling, and monitoring environmental noise within rapidly developing urban areas. The course examines urban noise pollution, environmental noise assessment, noise mapping, acoustic monitoring, traffic noise, construction noise, industrial noise, community noise, land-use planning, environmental impact assessment, and sustainable urban development. Participants will explore modern noise management frameworks, acoustic measurement techniques, regulatory compliance, noise reduction technologies, and data-driven approaches for creating healthier and more sustainable cities.

The course emphasizes practical urban noise management strategies aligned with environmental sustainability, public health protection, smart-city planning, climate-resilient development, and effective environmental governance. Through international case studies, participants will examine successful approaches to strategic noise mapping, transport noise reduction, zoning, acoustic barriers, building design, community engagement, and enforcement. The training also develops competencies for integrating noise considerations into urban planning, infrastructure projects, environmental assessments, and PPP (Public-Private Partnership) projects.

Course Objectives

By the end of the course, participants will be able to:
